1) The annualized total return is the average return earned by an investment each year over a given time period. Performance is calculated for the portfolio and individual investment performance may differ as a result of initial fees, the actual investment, the actual investment date, the date of reinvestment and dividend withholding tax. Due to the delayed release of inflation data, relevant benchmarks will lag by one month.

2) Total Expense Ratio (TER), expressed as a percentage of the Fund, relates to expenses incurred in the administration of the Fund. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TERs. Transaction Costs (TC), expressed as a percentage of the Fund, relate to the costs incurred in buying and selling the underlying assets of the Fund. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impact fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. The Total Investment Charges expressed as a percentage of the Fund, relates to all investment costs of the Fund. Both the TER and TC of the Fund are calculated on an annualised basis, beginning 01/10/2014 and ending 30/09/2017

Investment manager commentary

Truffle Asset Management

Global Equities are close to enjoying 12 consecutive months of positive returns

Global equity markets enjoyed yet another good month, advancing 2% in US dollars. Year-to-date global equity markets have advanced 22.6%. Should the month of December produce another positive outcome for global equities, it would reflect 12 consecutive months of positive returns. A very rare event indeed, but reflective of the overwhelming positive sentiment fuelling global developed equity markets. Interestingly, geographic differences between developed markets have been small with Europe ahead with a year-to-date return of 24.3% in US dollars, followed by the Pacific region with a 22.8% return and North America with a 20.1% return. Driving this improving growth scenario has been the very accommodating monetary policy adopted by the Federal Reserve, the ECB and other central banks over many years that is finally starting to bear fruit. In addition, the stimulus of the expected US tax cuts is adding to the positive outlook. Strangely, global equity markets are ignoring the rising political risks facing the world currently in the Middle East and in North Korea.

The risk of higher inflation and higher interest rates is rising

Theory suggests that prolonged periods of accommodative monetary policy lead to price inflation, but, to date this has not happened. However, ominously, the oil price is now slowly creeping up. Brent crude, having fallen to a low of $49/bbl. in June, is now approaching $63/bbl. Industrial metal prices are also showing strength. It is yet to be seen whether these price increases will filter through to broader price increases and, in the event, what the Central Bank's interest rate response might be. The risk of higher interest rates is rising although the Federal Reserve has, in the recent past, been particularly cautious in raising rates and will in all likelihood continue with this strategy notwithstanding the change in chairmanship from Yellen to Powell in 2018.

Local equities had a good month

In November the All Share Index was up 1.5% reflecting a 21.4% gain year to date. On the surface the year-to-date return is high but this must be seen against the equivalent Naspers return of 83.5% and the company's 20.5% weighting in the ALSI. Leading the advance over the month were industrial metals (+15.3%), industrial support services (+8.8%), general retailers (+8.4%) and banks (+8.3%). The laggards were software & computers (-11.4%), personal goods (-10.2%), household goods (-8.4%) and electronic & electrical (-8.4%). As a result of the political uncertainty, the currency has depreciated from a low of R13.1 in May to R13.7 to the dollar in November.

All South Africans are waiting for the outcome of the ANC leadership contest

The ANC leadership indaba in mid-December is currently dominating headlines and is likely to remain the central issue until the new ANC leader is accepted by the party. If the conference result is inconclusive or challenged, uncertainty could spill over into next year. Irrespective of who the new ANC leader is, urgent attention needs to be given to stimulating the SA economy to increase job creation. Economic growth has been too moribund to generate the jobs required to make a dent in the unemployment rate and should remain a key focus of the new leadership if stability is to be maintained. In November long bond yields continued to tick up, ending the month at 9.5% compared with 8.7% at the end of September. Bond returns over the month were therefore a subdued -1% following a -2.3% in October. We remain invested in short duration credit which yields 2.5% to 3% over JIBAR. We still think there is insufficient upside to warrant switching out of credit into longer duration government bonds.

Fund Positioning

The fund unfortunately held 4% in Steinhoff at month end. The share price has since fallen significantly post the announcement of an investigation into accounting irregularities together with the resignation of the CEO. At this stage it is almost impossible to ascertain a fair value for Steinhoff as the information being released by the company has been cryptic and lacking in detail. Given the near certainty of significant fraud in terms of overstatement of assets and earnings, determining a lower bound value is difficult. As a result, we have reduced our position. We will continue to closely monitor events as they unfold. Over 50% of the fund's equity has been exposed to rand hedges and remains so. This has been a result of more value being apparent in the offshore exposed shares. However, with the underperformance of local economy stocks, certain opportunities have presented themselves. We have increased our exposure to Remgro, Vodacom and the Foschini group. We funded these purchases primarily with Reinet sales.

Please note an important change that will be effective January 2018. Fund commentary will be produced on a quarterly basis, moving from the current monthly cycle, to provide an enhanced analysis of the fund over a longer period.
